Nowadays drivers have to get along with an increasing complex visual environment. More and more cars are on the road. There are not only distractions available within the vehicle, like radio and navigation system, the environment outside the car has also become more and more complex.

Car drivers’ gaze behaviour with and without distractions is studied. Furthermore different performance indicators, like velocity, lateral position, time-headway, are analysed while being distracted.